GOOD IDEAS AND GOOD BICYCLES.

This is the policy of B. A. Blenner, Bicycle Builder, Dealer and Repairer, No. 310 North Fifth Street, to supply value in a wheel at prices fair to all. Mr. Blenner has the distinction of building the first bicycles in Richmond several years ago, and has been building several wheels each year since. He has included his 1900 models, which show a number of changes, which will doubtless enhance the position which these bicycles already hold among admirers of high grade mounts. These wheels are indeed beautiful; the head has been shortened and the rake reduced three degrees; the head joints are both reinforced with long reinforcements; to tighten the head, an external binder, which will permit the raising of the handle bar, is fitted to all the new models; the seat post also has an internal binder. The joints are made flush on the outside, making the wheel exceptionally strong and beautiful inside; the top tube is an inch longer than that used last year, and a forged arch crown has been adopted for the front forks.

Regarding chainless bicycles: The subject has not matured with Mr. Blenner to a point of making a general announcement. If the demand for chainless wheels advances to a point where the rider wants them in numbers, by that time he will have the subject thoroughly in hand, ready to supply them in perfect form. This change in motive power in the construction of wheels is so radical in its incipient stage, as to be positively sure of making changes and improvements. When his chainless shall make its appearance, in the distant future, it must be one beyond criticism, and also one that he will feel safe in branding with his name and reputation.

The public are requested to examine these new models, which will be cheerfully shown and explained.

Mr. Blenner has the agency of the Olive and Dayton bicycles, which are the highest grade and prettiest wheels on the market. The demand has been so large for these handsome wheels that he has opened a new store, No. 1918 East Main Street. GOOD IDEAS AND GOOD BICYCLES.

TO THE WORKINGMEN OF RICHMOND.

As a workingman, I feel it my duty to call your especial attention to James C. Smith's letter of the 26th instant (a copy, I am informed, has been malled to cach one of us). IT PLACES THE SITUATION IN AN ENTITIELY DIFFERENT LIGHT. His election being now conceded, to show our appreclation and confidence, I would advise every one to cast their vote on Tuesday next for James C. Smith for City Sergeant, Make his election as near unanimous as possible.

A WORKINGMAN.

To the Citizens of Richmond:
A rumor having been circulated to my detriment, to the effect that I have falled to settle my accounts with the State as Clerk of the Chancery Court, and that for this reason I had resigned my position, I desire to state is absolutely false and without foundation, as a letter in my possession from the State Auditor will show. My, resignation was due to the fact that, being harassed by creditors, the result of my kindness of heart in endeavoring to help others. I realized that I could not give my undivided attention to the duties of the office at that time, and hence resigned. I now, however, feel satisfied that I can give my whole time, and I sincerely trust that you, my fellow-citizens, will aid me to secure a position which I filled for nine years under your approval and by your suffrages.

TO THE VOTERS OF RICHMOND

The following is an extract from an editorial in the Richmond Times dated editorial in the Richmond Times dated April 7, 1999. It speaks volumes in itself and will cause all voters to reflect when they cast their ballots on Tuesday next:

"The Times has no candidates for the Council, but we urge the importance of keeping in position those members whose efficiency and fidelity and loyalty to Richmond have been tested and proven. We would not make distinctions, but we say without hestiation, that in our order. Ne would not make distinctions, but we say without hesitation, that in our ordinion it would be a public misfortune for either President Caskle, of the Council, President Allen, of the Board of Aldermen, or Chairman Hardwicke, of the Finance Committee, to be retired at this time. These men occupy positions of the gravest responsibility, and they have proven by every act and by a long and honorable service that they are men of the strictest integrity, men whose one klea in holding position in the city government is to promote the true and best interests of the city. It would be reckless for the voters of Richmond to turn out these true and tried men and to put up in their places men who have not been tried.

"We do not mean to disparage other."

"We do not mean to disparage other members of the Council. We have called the names of these three for obvious rea-sons, but there are many other members of both branches of the municipal assemof both branches of the municipal assembly who have served the city most faithfully and efficiently, and the services of all such should be retained."

ADVENTURE WITH BODY-SNATCHERS

Awful Experience of Capt- Angle of the Second Police District.

OUT IN OAKWOOD CEMETERY.

The Work of the Students of the Medical College and Chris Baker. Watched Half the Night in the Rain.

It is often the duty of a police officer to go into very disagreeable positions, and some of these adventures are of the most harrowing nature, requiring all the nerve that can be summed up to keep a man steady.

Nearly every officer has had some such dventure, which he considers his worst experience.

Captain J. B. Angle, of the Second Police District, has been actively engaged in police work for a number of years, and, therefore, has been through many severe trials. But of all the experiences of this kind, the Captain says that his adventure in trying to catch a gang of grave-robbers, who had been systematically at work taking bedges from the grave-robbers, who had been systematically at work taking bodies from the various cemeteries around Richmond, was the worst of his whole experience as a policeman.

This adventure occurred while the Captain was a private on the force, and when Mr. Carrington was Mayor of Richmond.

graves of that burying-ground were being robbed, and that the body-snatchers greatly disturbed the residents of that section by making remarks about the bodies, and playing prants while carry-ing them away.

The graves that were being depredated

The graves that were being depredated upon were those in which paupers were buried, and the law which gave the bodies of paupers, felons, &c., to the various medical colleges had not been passed, and all the subjects used by these institutions had to be secured by theft.

The matter became so urgent that Mayor Carrington detailed Captain Angle, others C. H. Gibson and J. J. Walton

The weather was bad, and a fine, drizzling rain was falling, which added greatly to their discomfort, and rendered the job very disagreeable.

A GHASTLY SIGHT.

They waited, but not until just before midnight did the robbers put in their appearance. They came into the cemetery very quietly, with their implements and bags in which to put the bodies, and in a very few moments were engaged in exhuming a body. The officers watched them at their ghastly work. They worked rapidly, talking in an undertone, and telling jokes, as though they were engaged in a lawful occupathey were engaged in a lawful occupa-

The body-snatchers broke and ran, leaving their spades and sacks behind them in their efforts to escape, but the officers were too quick for them, and successively. ceeded in taking six, only one escaping, and he only by dashing headlong into a

The officers returned to the city with their prisoners. The captured men were five medical students from the Medical College of Virginia and Chris Baker, the negro janitor, also of that institution. The matter came up in the Hustings Court, but nothing was ever done about it. Shortly after this episode the Legislature passed the law giving the University and Medical College the bodies of paupers and convicts, which made this practice no longer necessary.

Captain Angle says that while he lay in that cemetery in the drizzling rain from 6 o'clock until midnight he was the most unhappy man alive. The officers returned to the city with

New Home for Savings Bank of Richmond GROCERIES!

A VERY SOLID INSTITUTION.

The Savings Bank of Richmond has secured new quarters. To-morrow it will open its doors at No. 1117 East Main Street.

This institution is strictly a Savings Bank, and the good work that is done by such a Bank in a community cannot be over-estimated. The man or woman who opens an account in a savings bank and augments the amount deposited by adding small sums from time to time becomes identified with the welfare of our city and assumes the responsibility of better citizenship. Thus the savings bank creates owners of houses and adds to the material prosperity of the city.

It is astonishing to note what results are accomplished when we cite the fact that during the eleven years of its existence this bank has actually paid over $150,000 interest on deposits.

Any one can improve his condition, because deposits are accepted in sums of one doilar and upwards.
